The Hygiene Trap

Scene 17 of 28: The shrug

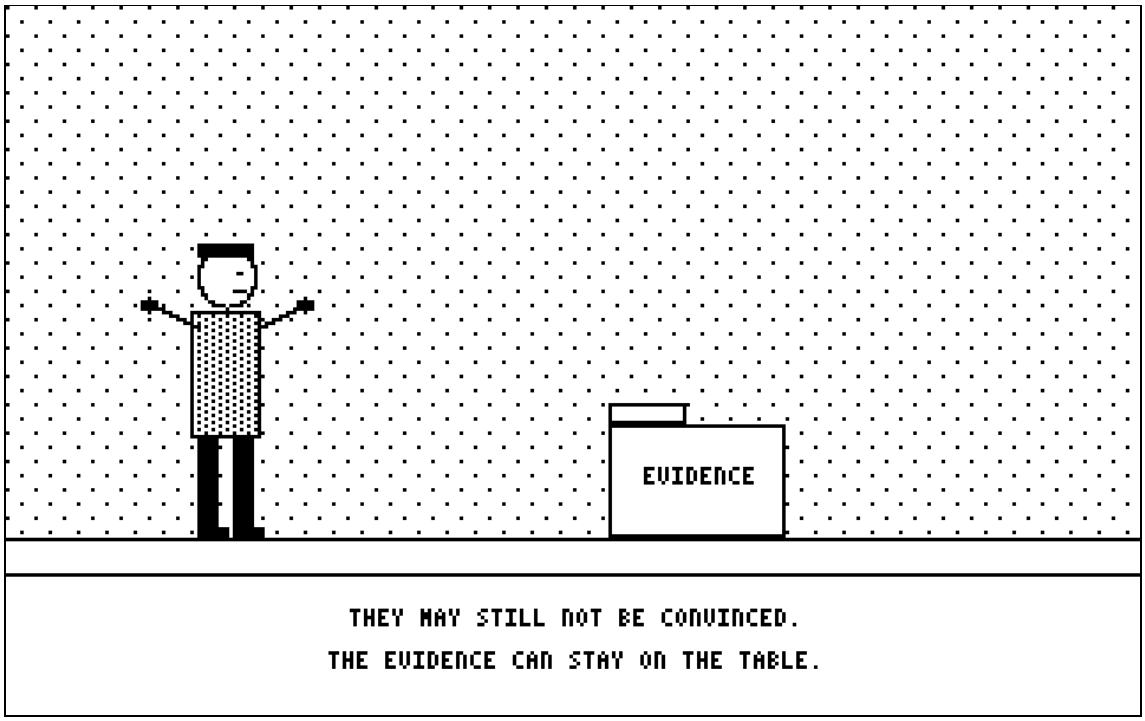

Three reactions

Frame 1. When the narrator says: “I drank from a hose as a kid. Fair enough....”

Frame 2. When the narrator says: “A filter? You're spoiled. But this isn't luxury versus none....”

Frame 3. When the narrator says: “Just companies making a buck? Sometimes. We're not selling anything,...”

What the narrator says

1. Some people won't be moved, and that's all right. Each of these reactions has a grain of truth.
2. I drank from a hose as a kid. Fair enough. Most healthy people tolerate a lot. The question is years of exposure, and the people who don't tolerate it.
3. A filter? You're spoiled. But this isn't luxury versus none. It's whether the last few feet are clean, and a clean jug of tap water costs nothing.
4. Just companies making a buck? Sometimes. We're not selling anything, and the first advice is free. The evidence can stay on the table either way.
